Understanding Your Fiduciary Responsibilities Under ERISA: Part II

Please join us as our speaker, Nichelle Langone, of the U.S. Department of Labor, discusses the fiduciary responsibilities of those entrusted with sponsoring or providing services to employee benefit plans. At the November 2014 educational session, Nichelle focused on the importance of the selection of service providers and timely employee/employer contributions. As a continuation of that session, Nichelle will further provide insights on fiduciary responsibilities with a particular focus on prohibited transactions and participant disclosures.

Nichelle Langone Supervisory Investigator, U.S. Department of Labor

Nichelle has been employed with the DOL's Employee Benefits Security Administration (EBSA) since 1997. In her current role, she is charged with the responsibility of overseeing nine supervisors. During her tenure, she has been involved in the investigation of a variety of civil and criminal cases involving both health care and pension issues. In addition, Nichelle served for six years as an instructor at EBSA's Criminal Enforcement Training course.
